THE GREAT WAR ENDED.

The result of the Portsmouth peace conference which has resulted in ending the war between Russia and Japan came most unexpectedly for the entire world had ceased to further hope of a cessation of hostilities.

Suddenly Japan yielded all points in the controversy. The Russian envoys could hardly believe their senses when the announcement was made. Japan has won a moral and Russia a diplomatic victory. This is practically the only victory of the war for Russia.

Japan could well afford to be magnanimous in waiving the indemnity and acting as the generous minded victor toward the fallen foe.

The worlds applause has been won by this master stroke and Japan is now a nation emerging from semi barbarous condition into the light of advanced civilization and she wants the good will of all other civilized nations. She could have secured it in no easier way than this.

By her action she has won a victory of peace greater than any she has won in war and the astute statesmanship that was the guiding power in reaching this end will be recognized by everybody.

Looking deeper into the motive for this act it may be suggested that Japan had about reached the limits of its resources in its struggle with Russia. Russia might be whipped in pitched battles fought close to Japan's base of supplies, but an invasion of Russian territory could only result in disaster to Japan and tax its limited resources to the utmost.

The armies of the Czar could retire to the illimitable steppes and in their retreat contest every inch of the way and a ten years war would still find the Japs exploring forbidden territory with an expense account of a million daily, to say nothing of the sacrifice of men.

The envoys of the Mikado have done the right thing at the right time and kept their credit good. Meanwhile the hand of President Roosevelt in the direction of peace negotiations must be acknowledged. He has played an important part in the great work, by which a way was found to stay the war that might, in time, have drawn the leading nations of the world into a protracted struggle.

His most partizan adversaries must give him full credit for this grand work in behalf of peace.

The white dove of peace has settled over Japan, Russia and the Reno light and power company. The world can stack arms from now on.

Rubicon Springs one of the most celebrated resorts of the high Sierras has opened for the season. The Springs are known the West over for their curative powers.

Mrs. Clark, who managed the Springs last season will be in charge again this year. Comfortable quarters a splendid table and general comforts afforded guests. Good fishing and hunting at and near the Springs.
